

ESANS is Now ESAM!

The Association is very excited to embark on a new challenge in 2015/2016: the expansion of representation to the environmental industry in New Brunswick (NB) and Prince Edward Island (PE), allowing harmonization of activities across the Maritimes.

In November 2015, the Association launched a campaign under its new name, the Environmental Services Association Maritimes (ESAM). With the introduction of ESAM, we are committed to working with the environmental sectors in the Maritimes region to advocate on behalf of our membership, to deliver professional development and networking opportunities to our membership, and to be available as a resource to our membership.

As the launch of ESAM progresses in the coming months, we welcome your feedback, whether positive or negative, to help build a strong voice for environmental businesses, academia, and government in the Maritimes.

We are looking forward to a promising future as ESAM.

About the Association

Founded in 1994, the Association has been operating for over 20 years as a not-for-profit business organization dedicated to the promotion of environmental products, services, businesses, and organizations within the environmental industry. It provides regulatory, technical, and business networking activities through Conferences, Trade Shows, Information Sessions, Social Events, Newsletters, and soon to be launched LinkedIn site and new Webpage.

About the Board and Staff

The Board and staff bring a diverse skill set to ESAM, with representation from the federal government, academia, consulting firms, and business owners. The breadth of experience is impressive and includes expertise in the fields of environmental assessment, fisheries and wildlife, hazardous materials, site assessment, remediation, and research and development. Three of the current Board members are from NB and PE, demonstrating the commitment to the entire Maritime Region.
